Mother of eight Doris Makina (53) lost her husband to illness in 2006. Even when they were both farming their land, their family often experienced food shortages for about five to six months a year. Doris struggled to feed her children; but with support, seeds and training from Concern, she has been able to grow enough cowpeas and beans (pictured) to eat and sell, giving her family a more secure future, free from hunger.

A wish to give a future free from hunger

Planning how your affairs will be dealt with when you are no longer around can bring you and your loved ones peace of mind. Along with deciding what will happen to your estate, you may want to share your wishes regarding your funeral and how you would like to be remembered.

To request that donations are made to Concern in lieu of flowers and to inspire others to continue tackling hunger and transforming lives, please sign the back of this card and attach it to your Will. We recommend sharing its contents with your loved ones, should your Will be referred to after the funeral.

You can also give further instructions regarding your funeral or memorial service to help your loved ones ensure your personal wishes are honoured.
